

Tyler Fenley

Tyler began his career at Devon Energy, where he performed a variety of engineering functions with a focus on technical planning, budget/portfolio management, and drill bit development in the Gulf Coast and Ark-La-Tex regions. Next, he joined WildHorse Resources where he managed the operational integration for over $700MM in assets, capital development programs in excess of $100MM per annum, and various multi-disciplinary teams across both the corporate and field level spectrum. Subsequent to the successful IPO of those assets, he started Graystone Investments which provides evaluation, engineering and A&D services to family offices & small operators. Most recently, he co-founded Venator Resource Partners which focuses on the acquisition and development of producing properties throughout the Gulf Coast, Ark-La-Tex and Rockies basins. He holds a B.S. in Petroleum Engineering from Texas Tech University.