

Here is the article topic proposal from Jamie Rhymes and his colleague April Rolan-Odgen April L. Rolan-Odgen | Liskow & Lewis, APLC

“Separation Anxiety - When Surface and Mineral Rights Diverge - The Louisiana Servitude”
Louisiana is unique in many ways, but perhaps none is as impactful on oil and gas operators and owners as the mineral servitude. With special rules on the creation, maintenance, and in some instances, the unchanging nature of the separation of surface and mineral rights, Louisiana law can be a trap for the unwary. This article explores what you need to know about the mineral servitude for operations and ownership in Louisiana.

I wanted to check with you and see if this would be a topic of interest for Landman magazine.